Namesake and First Recipient of the
James Raymond "Jimi" Flowers Coach of the Year Award

The USA Swimming Disability Swimming Coach of the Year Award is named in honor of James "Jimi" Raymond Flowers. According to Executive Director Chuck Wielgus, "We hope that naming the award in Jimi's honor will help to inspire other coaches to follow his example of inclusion of swimmers with disabilities in the sport of swimming. The impact that Jimi had on our sport was felt by many and we know that his legacy will continue to live on for years to come."

Jimi's contributions to inclusion were significant. He coached several swimmers who represented the USA at the 2008 Beijing Paralympics Games and at other international competitions. When at swim meets, he motivated many young swimmers with disabilities to continue in the sport by complimenting them on their performances, speaking with them about their goals, and offering helpful advice. Jimi assisted recently injured athletes such as Dave Denniston and war veterans in the Wounded Warriors program to rediscover their love of sport and become involved in Paralympic swimming. In a USOC press release, Jimi was described as "an incredible coach who developed numerous Olympic and Paralympic champions. He was passionate about swimming, dedicated to helping others, and was such an inspiration to athletes, colleagues, and all who knew him."

Jimi had an extensive background in competitive swimming. He was an avid swimmer throughout his life, having competed at the University of Tulane all four years of college. He was a four-time conference champion in the 200m breast. Flowers competed in three NCAA Championships, and in his senior year, he was named Athlete of the Year for the entire University. Flowers also competed at two U.S. Olympic Swim Trials in both 1980 and 1984.

After college, Flowers worked as an assistant coach for Auburn University from 1984 to 1989. He left Auburn for a position as a coordinator in USA Swimming's National Team Division through 1993. Flowers returned to Auburn in 1995 as a swimming assistant coach where he remained through 1999. In 1999, Flowers returned to Colorado Springs to the U.S. Olympic Committee, where he managed the USOC Aquatics Center until 2007. In addition, Flowers also assisted with aquatics operations at the 2004 Athens Olympic Games, airport operations at the 2006 Torino Olympic Winter Games, and he also handled logistics and airport operations at the 2007 Parapan American Games in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

In 2007, Flowers began working for U.S. Paralympics, a division of the U.S. Olympic Committee, as National Team Manager and Resident Program Coach for the Paralympic swimming program. In 2009, Flowers was promoted to Associate Director of High Performance for the Paralympic swimming program and also served as head coach of the national team.

Jimi Flowers received the 2010 Disability Swimming Coach of the Year Award posthumously, after his untimely death at age 47 from a climbing accident. A U.S. Paralympics press report revealed these details, "In the early afternoon on Friday, July 10, 2009, Flowers and another experienced climber were descending Capitol Peak , one of Colorado's famous 14,000-foot mountains, near Aspen, when Flowers lost his footing and slid about 500 feet through snow chutes and rock bands before coming to a stop in a steep rocky section. He died from serious injuries sustained in the fall."

In addition to the Coach of the Year Award, Jimi was a 2010 inductee into the Tulane Athletics Hall of Fame. Also in 2010 U.S. Paralympics initiated an annual swimming meet in Jimi's honor.
